ROLEPLAY

....(boss is heard saying goodbye on the phone and hanging up)...

Director: Hi Chris! How's it going?

Chris: Hey boss! It's going well. So.. my business trip to the London office.

Director: Right. I sent you a summary of the situation. Have you read it?

Chris: Yes, I did and I understand how important this trip is. What do you need me to do?

Director: I have two main tasks for you to take care of. The regional office needs a new general manager. So the first thing you need to do is decide on a new GM.

Chris: OK. Do you have any suggestions?

Director: I do. I've sent you a list of potential candidates. Did you see it?

Chris: Oh yes! Thanks a lot!

Director: You can start interviewing them before you leave and finish when you get there. You're going to have a difficult time making a decision because they're all excellent choices.

Chris: That sounds like a good problem to have. Alright, what's the next task you need me to do?

Director: The previous GM quit while he was in the middle of negotiating a new contract.

Chris: Hmm, I understand. Do you have any details on the negotiations?

Director: I have some of them but not all of them. I'm going to send you everything I have after the meeting. When you get to the London office you need to talk to Susan, the operations manager. She has a folder of the GM's handwritten notes.

Chris: OK. Give me a second, please. I need to write this down.

Director: Don't worry, I'll send you all the details soon. Now, let's talk about your progress with preparing for the trip.

Chris: What would you like to know?

Director: Which airline are you going to fly with?

Chris: I've found a couple of options for flights, but I haven't decided on one yet. After our meeting I'm going to look at it one more time and book the best option for me.

Director: Good. In which part of the city are you going to stay?

Chris: I still need to talk with Mary, the travel manager from Human Resources, because I have some questions about my hotel options. I'm going to speak with her after lunch.

Director: Last question. Are you going to rent a car?

Chris: I'm not sure. It depends on where I'm going to stay and where all my meetings and events are.

Director: When you talk to Mary you need to discuss car rental options too.

Chris: I'll be sure to mention it to her.

Director: The last thing you need to do before you leave is make an itinerary.

Chris: Oh, speaking of an itinerary, am I going to have free time to check out any of the local sites?

Director: You're not going to have a lot of free time to do sightseeing. So, if you want to make sure you have the time, you also need to do some research on the sights you want to see.

Chris: ok, got it!

Director: Ok, good luck with everything!

Chris: Thanks! Talk to you soon.
